*PROTECTION" AND THE FARMER anifed at the tood and then walked

The highest prices for a farm products were reached about a year ago, soon after the present Tariff Law went into effect. If the new tariff had anything to do with those prices t must also have a corresponding effect on prices at this time, which are considerably lower than those c a year ago. T he reductions in prices tange from 15 to more than 40 per call and apply to nearly all standard furus products.

The truth is that the tariff hasn't a thing to do with the present prices nor had it anything to do with th prices a year ago. The law of tuppl and domand governs the farmer's procosts. That market is not fixed by any one country, but in the menera markets of the world. And so long as this country exposts farm product -which time, it is hoped, will be very long - protection on farm products will continue to deceive the farmer into supporting the protective system

To Hiustrate: An exception to present prices in general is the unusually bigh price of pork due to the anusua abortage of hogs, but on the other land the unusually low prices of motton and lamb are due to the hig supply of sheep. Yet both hogs and sheep are "protected."

On the other hand, nearly every taing of importance that the farmer has to buy costs more now than it did a year ago. There have been sturp advances in the prices of wooland implements, shoes, harness and John Massa surveys; $6600.00.

nany other articles of necessity. The farmer must sell in an approtected market, and so long as the country produces farm products for export, just so long the farmer will continue to well in an unprotected market. But he must buy in a prolected market. More than that, be rius; buy in a market largely control. the midst of a glorious meeting. #### MAKING FILMS IN PUBLIC.

The knack of the moving picture to: making michief is illustrated by a rule incident reported from Rome. "The Pope has left for the Vatibroughout the Eternal City. And the oman public was stirred for hours Semebody had observed a pair o commics enter an automobile near lurbs. One was a venerable figure ttired in a respiencem white emesoand a red robe; the other was dresses n sober black, like a secretary Priests on foot who encountered the entomobile salared reverentially; the sublic took the cue, and a new day in Italian politics had dawned.

But the "pope" turned out to be a ctor employed by a Cinemategrap a omponey that was getting up some Lucreile Borgia" films on one of the amount of the seven hills.

The streets of the modern city are becoming accustomed to the performances of the nim actors, but present ay civilization is too delicately porto permit such thoughtless triffing ofth great personages and high poles. The right acres going a stadrid in the right e-cits might starr revolution. In Wall street he might roduce a panie. In Columbus or Inlanapolis he might swing the No emiler elections.
